Biographical Sketch

Marie Aloysia Dunne was an author, lecturer, and educator. Born October 8, 1882, in Chicago to Stephen Henry and Ellen (Madigan) Dunne, Marie Aloysia was the eldest of three children. She graduated from the Sacred Heart Academy in 1896 and went on to attend the Chicago Normal School for teachers, from whence she graduated in 1897. She received her Ph.B. from the University of Chicago in 1910 and her Master's degree from DePaul University in 1912. Marie Aloysia served in the Chicago Public Schools, first teaching at Hanson Park School before being promoted to assistant principal at the Henry D. Lloyd School. In 1908 she became the principal of Alfred Nobel Public School, a position she retained until her death in 1924. In addition to teaching, Marie Aloysia was a prolific writer translating the Life of Pierre Olivaint by Charles Claire (1907) and contributing articles and poems to the New World, Rosary Magazine, Magnificat, and American Catholic Quarterly Review.

Marie Aloysia Dunne passed away on August 7, 1924.
