Biographical Sketch

Prior to his birth, Leon's parents migrated to Kishinev, Rumania, hoping for a better standard of living. There he was born on March 19th, 1898, the fourth child. After completing his secondary school he went back to Poland and became an apprentice tool maker. Three years later his family emigrated to the United States and settled in St. Adelbert's Parish in Chicago. During this time he attended Harrison High School to learn the English language and worked at the same time.

In 1917 he enlisted in the United States Army. His patriotism and enthusiasm were so overwhelming to his superiors that in just three months he was promoted. The major events in his life basically revolved around the Polish National Daily which was founded by John F. Smulski, President of the North-Western Trust and Savings Bank. Leon Walkowicz was also very active in organizing various literary and dramatic societies throughout Chicago. Due to his interests he began to acquire hundreds of books, letters, photos, and autographs of many famous world figures. Walkowicz co-founded the Alliance of Polish-American Veterans, which eventually merged with the Polish Legion of American Veterans-USA, and founded the Polish-American Historical Society in Chicago.
